Mitchell Fain (A Courtesan) was born in Providence, Rhode Island but moved to Chicago at 25 to grow up. Since being here, he has danced naked at Dance Chicago, played three dead gay poets, a Shakespearean king, joined a circus, performed the words of James Joyce and Anne Frank and David Sedaris, played a dying Dalmatian, a petulant dictator and most importantly...a killer cheerleader named Pepper. He has worked with many wonderful theater companies and extraordinary people. He is an artistic associate of Chicago's Midnight Circus...where he flips, flops and flies...and directs sometimes too. He spent three years as the head counselor at Circus Smirkus; the world's largest touring youth circus. Most recently he spent four months doing improv/sketch comedy for the famed Second City as a member of the cast on the lovely Norwegian Jade...visiting every country on the Mediterranean Sea...plus England, Ireland, Scotland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Norway. Up next, he will continue his touring with The Second City -- this time in South America and Mexico. Watch for him on episode #11 and #12 of the Patrick Swayze rogue cop show The Beast.

John Kishline (Abbot) This is John's sixth production working with The Shakespeare Project. He's been Gloucester in King Lear, the title guy in Henry IV and other blowhards and dimwits designated by Mr. Christian. He's done nine-score plays in a bunch of countries and lots of states and written 10 or 11 of his own. He is also the first death in the upcoming film, Public Enemies, which opens in July. Don't be late, as he will be dead before the title hits the screen.
